EINSTEIN'S BRAIN MISSING

Full story pg. 13

The brain of Albert Einstein 1955

In 1955 when Albert Einstein (scientist) died his brain was removed from his skull by a man named Harvey. Right now the brain is missing and nobody knows where its gone. Every day the lost and found container is checked but it hasn't turned up. It was last seen in a glass case but now the case is empty and all that's left on the shelf is some slime matter. Security camera recordings are available but the security guard called Hank who has the key to the tech room won't answer his phone. Once Hank is reached the recordings can be accessed and we can all see who took the brains. Right now there is a search party operating every Thursday night from 4PM-9PM and in November the party will begin searching outside of the glass case. This brain needs to be found and returned to its case for public display.

HOLLYWOOD HOGS, Co-FOUNDERS & HISTORY

The Hollywood Hogs is run by the two Co-Founders. Jenny Dodge and Jamie Ayling. Hollywood Hogs is not just a motorcycle gang. It's an entertainment company. We have produced:

- 2hr 14min Halloween TV Variety Special
- News Program
- Website
- Videos
- DVD for sale
- CD of music & impressions (performed by Co-Founders)
- Newspaper
- Live event called Hog Summit

HALLOWEEN SPECIAL

In 2016, The Hollywood Hogs produced a two-hour-and-fourteen-minute TV variety special called 'The Hollywood Hogs Halloween Special'. This was performed in front of a live studio audience and included such things as several musical performances by Co-Founder Jamie, segments, Hollywood Tour by Co-Founder Jenny, Roast of Matt LeBlanc, celebrity impressions by Co-Founder Jenny, a movie screening and much more.

Recently the Halloween Special was forcibly removed from YouTube without the Co-Founders' permission due to "copyright claims" on certain audio files used. This is unacceptable and wrong and the Hollywood Hogs will be taking action against these nitwits who took this special down for no valid reason.

The special was also available for sale on DVD for a short time only.

In 2016, www.thehollywoodhogs.com was launched and was used as a social media platform for the Hollywood Hog community. The site contained information, images, chat feature, about, photo gallery, music player, store, shopping cart, easter eggs, weather, contact details, image uploading facilities, articles, access to Entertainment Showcase, daily pledge of allegiance with the Co-Founders, The Silicon Valley webpage, fictional stories, Artist Jenny, comment feature, updates and more.

Hollywood Hogs is a biker community located in Hollywood, California. We ride our hogs only on the streets of Hollywood. Streets like Hollywood Blvd, the famous 401 Freeway and Sunset Blvd and all the others too. Members of Hollywood Hogs will ride the streets with the likes of Tom Hanks, Eminem (the rapper), Ellen Degeneres and others.

Hog News

Hog News is the TV branch of the Hollywood Hogs Press Conglomerate. On Hog News the Co-Founders discuss important topics for the fans. There are different segments like weather and news. On episode 2 there was a musical performance by Co-Founder Jamie. Mark Zuckerberg has been awarded 'Loser of the Week' and wore a dunce hat. At the end of every episode a funny clip is shown. Hog News has been described as irregular and that's why the Hog Summit was created. Together, Hog News, Hog Summit and the Hollywood Hogs Newspaper will provide the community with all the information they need.

The Hollywood Hogs Press Conglomerate
"Ever wondered what's going on?"

In 2019, the Co-Founders created the Hollywood Hogs Press Conglomerate. The HHPC was formed as an informational vehicle for the Hollywood Hogs community. The line used for the HHPC is "ever wondered what's going on?". This is a rhetorical question. Hog News TV news program doesn't come out as often as people might like and we know people don't know what's going on. But now that this conglomerate has formed, information can be accessed through three different avenues: Internet or TV, with the Hog News program; In person, at the Hog Summit; On paper, with the Hollywood Hogs Newspaper.

Breaking News

Story by Jenny Dodge

On January 2015, Matthew Perry was spotted drinking coffee at Coffee Bean at their 6255 Sunset Blvd location in Hollywood, CA. He was drinking black coffee like a real man with an unidentified female (source: co founder Jenny saw it). This was not Mr. Perry's first rendezvous at this location. In 2004 he was seen at this very location with Lauren Graham from Gilmore Girls (source: lauren-online.net). On September 2008 he was found leaving Coffee Bean in Hollywood again. This time he was drinking an iced coffee (source: Hollywood.TV). These are at least 3 reported incidents of Matthew Perry drinking coffee drink at Coffee Bean in Hollywood, CA. This gives us great belief he goes there more.

The Weather

HOLLYWOOD - The weather in Hollywood has been very nice and hot. The sun is out and your going to want to wear your sun glasses to avoid hog crash. Wear your sun block too if you need to wear it. Also recommended to wear your bandana and hog boots for more protection.

Sports News

Story by Phil Braun

MELBOURNE – The United States national basketball team was shocked recently, losing for the first time in 13 years at the hands of the Australian national team by a score of 98-94. The game was held in front of 52,000 Australians at the Marvel Stadium in Melbourne as they witnessed the U.S. team's 78 game winning streak come to an end. The U.S. was at a distinct disadvantage however, as it was reported that the Australian team used 'leaden' balls, which are uneven and weigh more than the typical basketball normally would. It was also noted that the game was played on a graded area of dirt, and the U.S. team had to contend with tumbleweeds or the random wallaby crossing over the crude playing surface. Goals were raised to 12' on the United States' end of the court, while the Australians were allowed to play on their customary 9' goal. The U.S. had managed a 13 point lead late in the game, in spite of Australian officials suddenly declaring at half time that each goal the Aussie team made were to be worth 10 points each, while goals for the U.S. were only worth a tenth of a point. The U.S. couldn't hold on and lost by 4 in the waning seconds. Shoes were not allowed for the United States team.

Mark update

There have been two major Mark Zuckerberg related incidents which we will now report. Sources say on the night of July 17th, 2019 Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg had a dream about Hollywood Hogs Co-Founders Jenny Dodge and Jamie Ayling riding on their hog motorcycles down Hollywood 401 Freeway and wet the bed from fear. A member of the Hogs rode by Marks home that morning and reported seeing Mark drying sheets (and pillowcases) on his second-story balcony railing. The second incident stemmed from an article the Co-Founders read detailing that Mark only eats the meat of animals he has killed himself. Mark tried to kill a cow with his own bare hands but instead wet pants and stood frozen in field. He is now vegetarian.

STUDY

conducted by the WMPENESMC-ENESMENET

Recent studies by the fine people at the Walter M. Phurnse ENESMCENESMENET show that people who gain unlimited access to the Hollywood Hogs database of informational contents specifically regarding entertainment related and Co-Founder created text, video footage and physical material whether it be the existing computer accessible contents or mail-order corporeal material are on-average more likely to develop a higher and more advanced ocular and auditory input induced "moving scale" of intelligence quotient that not only increases on a moving upward "scale" if between a low-to-above-average position but even more rapidly increases if already at an extraordinarily advanced position. When run through an infogradient machine located in NYC the data (from all test subjects including the informational contents mentioned plus all third-party daily input) stunningly resembled a dollar coast averaging regime. To be quite honest these results come as no surprise to the higher-ups in the WMPENESMCENESMENET Secular Number Use in Mathematics Department. Dr. Alex Hessere from the Secular Number Use in Mathematics department, upon seeing these results, was quoted as saying, "These results come as no surprise to us higher-ups in the 'Snum' department".

Loser Leblanc

Matt LeBlanc from TV show 'Friends' tried to dock his boat in California on a Saturday afternoon in April. The Co-Founders got word the boat was coming landward and they called their best hogs to the location. As Matt drove the boat towards the dock the hogs were lined up using intimidation techniques. They were revving their engines and making direct eye contact and Matt Leblanc looked like the three stooges. He shook with fear and turned the boat around and drove it to New York harbor instead.

What is T.O.A.D.S?

An investigation by Jamie Ayling

I've always said that I have a perfect moral compass. I couldn't imagine anybody more moral than me. It's obvious to me what's right and wrong and none of my belief systems contradict each other. I know there's no such thing as a ghost. Bigfoot is too big to be real. Gnome is too small to be real. The reason I'm explaining this to you is that when you have belief systems as sound as mine, they are rarely challenged. A group called T.O.A.D.S made me challenge some of these belief systems, making me question the honesty of an institution I had trusted since I was a newborn baby - The Olympic Games.

I was made aware of this group about two months ago when my colleague Walter Phurnse emailed me a link to a Facebook group called 'T.O.A.D.S'. Don't try to find it - it's been taken down. These people believe the Olympic Games that occur every four years, that are televised worldwide, are staged. 'T.O.A.D.S' stands for The Olympics Are a Deception and Scam. T.O.A.D.S has hundreds of supporters across the USA and Europe. I've spoken at length to the husband and wife team who started this campaign, Helen and Steve Roaberts, about their efforts to alert the public to what they call a worldwide financial scam.

Steve Roabertes: They're not athletes, they're actors.

Helen Roabertes: We've picketed outside every Olympics Games event since the early 2000's spreading our message, and we have no plans to stop any time soon.

Jamie Ayling: How did this all start?

Steve Roabertes: Well, it was after our trip to Sydney, Australia about well, 19 years ago now for the 2000 Olympics Games. We were back home in the US after our trip and we went to see the new Charlie's Angels movie at the cinema and noticed a lot of the extras looked suspiciously similar to the "athletes" we had just seen competing in the Olympics Games a couple of months prior. We went home and immediately created the TOADS campaign.

Jamie Ayling: You don't think that could've just been a coincidence?

Steve Roabertes: No

Jamie Ayling: Oh ok.

Helen Roabertes: Where is the water I asked for?

Jamie Ayling: It's coming. Which sports in the Olympic Games are fake and which are real?

Helen Roabertes: Every winner and loser is decided before-hand. It's all just a show. The sports are all set-ups except for one. Pole vaulting. You can't fake that.

Steve Roabertes: They are amazing athletes, the pole vaulters.

Helen Roabertes: Yes.

Jamie Ayling: Where can the Hollywood Hogs audience find you?

Helen Roabertes: Our Facebook page was taken down by the powers that be. But we created a Twitter page recently. @TOADSscampaign

Jamie Ayling: Thank you very much for taking the time to speak with me.

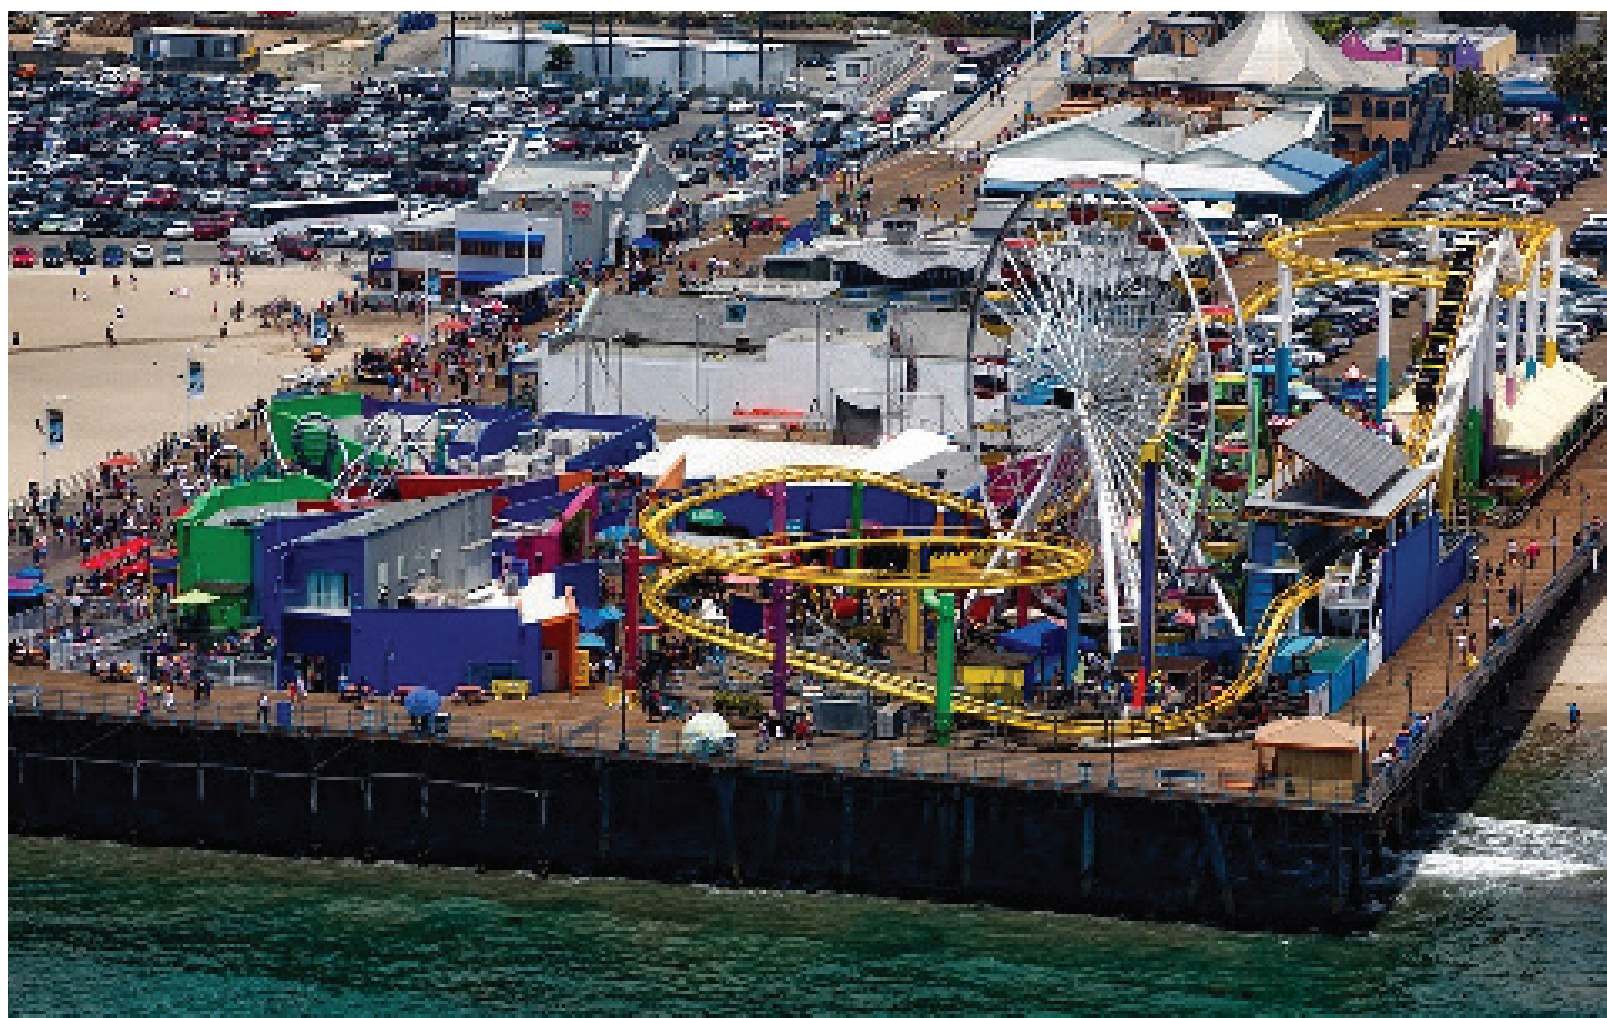

The Boardwalk Exchange

A fictional tale by Jamie Ayling

contains drug references**

Jamie Ayling of Hollywood Hogs is driving to the drug deal on her hog. The deal is going down on the Venice Beach dock. Jamie rides her hog along the boardwalk and parks next to the ferris wheel. Jenny is there waiting with the briefcase of cocaine and other drugs on high demand. Jamie dismounts her bike and walks up to Jenny. "Hello, my business partner", Jenny says. "Hello, my business partner", Jamie replies. Jenny and Jamie stand in front of the ferris wheel until the criminals arrive. Suddenly they arrive. They drive cars in which they can't ride onto the boardwalk because they won't fit and would probably break it. They park their cars and exit them. Then they walk the entire way up to the ferris wheel to Jamie and Jenny. The gang leader is holding a briefcase similar to Jenny's. "I have the money. Do you have the drugs I asked for?", says the drug leader. Jenny replies, "it's in this briefcase". The gang leader says, "okay hand it over". Jenny says, "you first". The gang leader says, "Hey I said no funny business on the phone call". Jamie interjects, says, "Listen buddy, we have all the crap you did ask for on the phone so as soon as you hand over the cash we will give you the drugs exactly like we agreed upon. If you're not going to be a professional we will end this now and ride our hogs off the boardwalk... now". The drug dealer replies, "Alright, alright, fine. Here's my briefcase". He begins to walk forward towards Jenny holding the briefcase out in front of his body. Jenny does the same thing. They do a smooth swap of the cases and begin to back away. "That's what I like to see", says Jamie. "Agreed", says Jenny. Jamie says, "I guess this deal is complete". Jenny and Jamie mount their hogs and drive off down the boardwalk. Thank you.

The Mansion Party

A fantasy Born from the mind of Jenny Dodge

It's Saturday night at 7pm and Zak arrives to the mansion party on his Hog. Already he can see the backs of Betty White and Ryan Reynolds's heads entering the big white mansion. There is a Lion and Cheetah lounging on the front lawn and play boy bunnies waving hello at Zak as he parks the Hog motorcycle. "Okay, I can get used to this" Zakary uttered as he takes off his hog helmet. The playboy bunnies link arms with Zak and he enters the party with the two beautiful dames on his sides. He loves play boy bunnies. Zak stops cold in his tracks when he enters the party and begins to quiver like a damn baby. What is it Zak? You are looking like a boss in your motorcycle boots yet you are quivering like a baby.

The play boy bunnies ask Zak what's wrong but he is basically in shock and is babbling like a baby. I'm honestly surprised he didn't start sucking his thumb then and there or crapped his pants, but luckily he didn't. That is when he is suddenly face to face with someone very special. You probably already guessed it because only one man makes Zak turn into a little boy again and it's Matthew. Matthew Perry of course. Zak is a very big fan of Perry's work and smart-ass attitude which Zak wishes he could be like. Somehow Zak is looking more like Mark Zuckerberg who is kind of a huge dork.

Speaking of Zuckerberg, he is actually at this party. They invited him as a joke and now he is locked in the bathroom getting a wedgie from the strongest man in Hollywood - The Rock.

Anyways... Matthew Perry notices Zak instantly because he sticks out like a sore thumb. He walks towards Zak immediately and says....

"Zak, it's you! I have not seen you since the Christmas Party at this mansion in 2013" said Mister Matthew.

"You...you...you...you... remembered it?" Zak managed to mumble out of his mouth and is drooling a little bit.

Zak may be the toughest guy in town but everyone has their kryptonite...

"Yes, Zak. You followed me around like a puppy dog. I don't get it, you are the coolest guy at the party yet somehow you turn into a bafloon when you look at me. I am just some smart-ass and you are a bad-ass"

Zak begins to perk up and confidently says, "As a Hollywood Hog I can confidently say that being a smart ass and being a bad ass are equally awesome. As long as we are not a dumb-ass!"

Matthew laughs a little and says "You got that right."

Suddenly there is a clinking sound coming from the top of the mansion stairs. Clink clink clink! Matthew, Zak, and the rest of the massive party guests look up.

There he is, wearing a red silk robe and matching slippers. He smells like cologne and pure ecstasy. It is Ryan Seacrest clinking his champagne glass. He actually grew a goatee which looks nice on his face. Zak smiles a big fat smile. Ryan slowly walks down the stairs smiling his Crest Toothpaste smile. "Zak, so glad you made it to my party on your Hog" Ryan utters from his newly goateed mouth.

"I would not ever miss it for the world. Just look at this place. Come here and give me a man hug!"

Zak and Ryan hug, the two men are confident in their masculinity and have no problem doing a bear hug in front of everyone. There brave.

"Best Bromance of all time!" Zak screams it so loud for everyone to hear. Everyone starts dancing after this moment and doing the conga line all around the mansion. Eminem and 21 Pilots played live music as per Zak's request.

Zak enjoyed the party. Among the countless intellectual conversations he had at the event, he actually enjoyed joking around Matthew Perry the most. Zak ended up not being so nervous when he figured out that Mr. Perry is just like anyone else, a normal guy who drinks at the Coffee Bean on Sunset. They actually made plans to meet for coffees next week and the rest is history!

Co-Founder Conversation with Jenny Dodge and Jamie Ayling

Topic: Mark Zuckerberg

Jenny: Hello my business partner.

Jamie: Hello to you my business partner. It looks like today we're having a conversation for the newspaper.

Jenny: Yep, and we have some interesting topics to discuss.

Jamie: There's a man of the name Mark Zuckerberg and basically he's the owner of Facebook I guess. We've had a rift with Mark for years now ever since Hollywood Hogs first started.

Jenny: He pisses me off. He targets us via code through messenger app.

Jamie: Yes

Jenny: Mark tracks our location with his puny tracking device so he knows where to avoid at all cost.

Jamie: He's scared of us.

Jenny: Yup

Jamie: We know that for a fact. He also is inside my text conversations spying. He's been in my messages multiple times. I know he's in there. He reads my messages and I have to scream for him to get out of the chatroom. I can always tell when he's in there. Mark if you're reading this and we know you are... Stay out of my messages. I know you're in there when I'm talking to people.

Jenny: And he went to US Congress last year. I feel giddy like a baby in the candy store when I see Mark Suckerberg getting punished for his bad behavior.

Jamie: Naughty Mark. Naughty naughty. Somebody has been a naughty boy.

End of conversation.

The 7 Wonders of the World

Written by Jamie Ayling

Illustrated by Amy Carrots

We've all heard of the so called 7 Wonders of the World but can you name them all? Today we will be looking at the original 7 Wonders of the World. All over our earth there are glimpses of our past. Architectural anomalies, megastructures built during a time when if you asked a 200 year old man or woman about it even they wouldn't know what it was like because they were either a baby or hadn't existed yet, and beautiful statues that we only have artists impressions of today. Sometimes we can get so caught up in today's newest technologies and products that we forget about our world's most incredible sights for example the pyramids. Did you know there are triangular buildings in Egypt that are made of something called limestone? On that note, let my analysis begin.

“The Pyramid of Giza”. This giant triangular building is one of the Wonders of the World. It's only 146.7 metres tall which is a little less than half the height of The Eiffel Tower in Paris. Although it's shorter than The Eiffel Tower, its base is much, much larger. Specifically, a little more than double the width of the French tower. Regardless of this, its construction is quite incredible as it was built by hand in a time when they didn't have cranes. Hundreds of keen tourists from all over the world flock to the building every year on vacation but the people who live nearby to this building don't care for it as they see it every day of their lives. They can appreciate its beauty but at this point they are desensitised to it which is understandable. It's made of limestone which is a sedimentary rock. Limestone is made from coral from the ocean. I assume when one walks within this great pyramid one can hear the ocean just like when you place your ear inside a sea shell. There are three small versions of the pyramid next to it. That's enough about this pyramid. Let's move on.

The next 7 Wonders of the World is known as the Hanging Gardens of Babylon. This garden is simply a garden that hangs down the side of a building using gravity. A King of the name Nebuchadnezzar II built this wonder for his wife who liked green plants. This King built a large building that contained big ascending garden areas made up of shrubs, vines and trees. This is what the gardens of Babylon is. Some think the Hanging Gardens of Babylon is a myth, some think it was simply destroyed many years ago. The fact it doesn't exist today poses many questions like, where was it? Did it exist? How was it destroyed? Who wanted it gone? These are all unanswerable questions. On that note it's time to move on.

The Lighthouse of Alexandria was a lighthouse in Egypt that looks exactly like the top of a New York Skyscraper, which is interesting because New York didn't exist when this lighthouse was built. This lighthouse was constructed by members of an Egyptian kingdom, to quote George Lucas, “a long time ago”, in a kingdom, “far far away...”. This Lighthouse was partially destroyed by two earthquakes. This took 12 years to make. 12 long years of construction to build this lighthouse.

It's interesting that it takes so long to build one building in ancient times when today we have tools like cranes and trucks to speed things along. It would have been a very long and excruciatingly tiresome process to build these magnificent structures back then, which makes the appreciation and respect for these works of art so much more intense.

Next is something called The Colossus of Rhodes which is the male version of Statue of Liberty. It was located on the Greek Island of Rhodes and depicts a giant version of the God Helios. This wonderful statue stood as tall as the Statue of Liberty in America.

It was erected by sculptor Chares of Lindos who upon being told that he made a minor mistake in the sculpting of the statue, took his own life.

On our detailed journey through the 7 Wonders of our World, we have now reached The Temple of Artemis. It was a large building located in Turkey. The Temple of Artemis was actually destroyed and rebuilt three times before final destruction in 401 AD. This mirrors the production process and final exhibition of movies today. Antipator of Sidon, the creator of The Seven Wonders of the World list, claims this is his favourite wonder. He says, "but when I saw the house of Artemis that mounted to the clouds, those other marvels lost their brilliancy", referring to the six other wonders.

The last two wonders are basically another statue and another building.

Constitutional Minute

by Joel Temperlane

"One minute a day is all it takes to become a U.S. Constitution expert!"

Did you know...

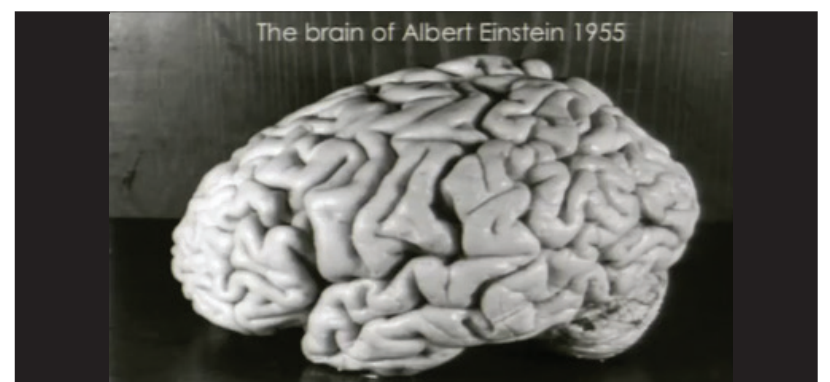

- The Bill of Rights establishes limits on the government's ability to legislate in a manner that impacts fundamental human rights, and was modeled off of the principles of the Ten Commandments?
- Cops can't make you blow into a breathalyzer?
- You didn't have to wear a helmet on a horse back then, and everybody turned out just fine?
- Horses are more dangerous than motorcycles?
- During Roman Times, only the weakest soldiers wore helmets into battle?
- To get around unconstitutional helmet laws, you can make a motorcycle helmet out of half a walnut shell and a piece of string?

Einsteins Brain

Alberts Einsteins brain is gone missing. You did not read it wrong. Its just plain gone. It went missing when he died and his doctor removed it. He didn't have permission. After that it went missing and someone took it. The brain weighs 1230g which is not too heavy. It would not be difficult for someone to run or walk while carrying this brain because its lightweight. This is the brain of a genius, and I am tired of people dilly dallying about it. Whoever stole the brain should be in jail. They are a crook.

If you find this brain please place it in the lost and found container

Tech Talk

An op-ed on technology by Jenny Dodge

Ever since I was a little baby I was attracted to technology. I always was attracted to wires and it makes sense because our brains are hard-wired just like technology. I quickly learned the computer as soon as my parents let me access their Dell computer when I was just a toddler. Here I am today, many years later, making an article about the latest technology including but not limited to Virtual Reality, Flying Drones, and the newest iPhones.

I know everything you need to know about technology and promise that this is information for everyone. Whether you are new to technology or an expert like me, this will be interesting and good information. I plan to talk about more technology too in more articles to come.

In today's society it is no secret we need technology more than we need air. My favorite technology is flying drones. When I leave my front door - I say to myself "phone, keys, drone". This phrase, once known as "phone, keys wallet" is now obsolete because we all have Apple iWallets on our iPhones. So I replaced wallet with drone.

I get angry and / or furious when someone tells me my drone is a toy. It is not a toy, it is tech. Some argue it is both but I think it is actually more of a tool. I use my drone as a tool for joy, fun and spy on my neighbor with camera.

Another piece of technology I like is virtual reality. I like to sit back and relax while I wear my VR Oculus goggles. Those awesome goggles are not your average speedo brand goggles for swimming. They take you to whole new universes. Some times I wear my goggles, open up a beer and box of pizza and "get lost" in all the right ways. This typically happens on Tuesday and Thursday nights and weekends.

Something else on my mind all the time is the newest iPhones. I hope that Apple comes out with something more interesting. My idea is they come up with holograms on the phones. We are all sick and tired of the touch screen - boring! Last time I found touch screen interesting I was in the year 2005. Give me something worth my time.

I hope you learned something from my article about tech. It's all I have to say for now.

Signing off,

Jenny.

What is a Universal Serial Bus?

By Joel Temperlane

One of the most infuriating things about technology is the terminology. For example, what is RAM (Random Access Memory) vs. ROM (Read Access Memory), and what is their purpose? Similarly, if you've used a computer, you have undoubtedly encountered multiple rows of jacks of varying sizes and shapes. What you may not realize is that each of these jacks has a unique name, and serves a unique purpose.

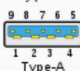

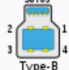

This week's article is the first in a series on the "Universal Serial Bus" jack, more commonly referred to as the "USB jack." The USB jack comes in three fundamental formats – standard, mini and micro. As the name suggests, the "standard" USB jack is the industry standard on most consumer electronics, and is the focus of this article. If you plan to read only one article in this USB jack series, this is the one to read.

To provide some context, a jack is used to transfer data, and can simultaneously be used to charge a phone or other battery-powered device, or to operate a small fan, or even to power a wireless charger. Data can be transferred two ways – in or out, or both. More specifically, some jacks will only accept data coming "in" (a "Data In Jack"), some will only permit data to go "out" (a "Data Out Jack"), and some will do both "in" and "out" (a "Both Jack").

Before you decide what jack you want to use, you should first assess what you need to do with the data.

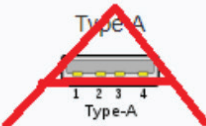

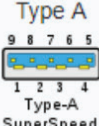

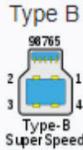

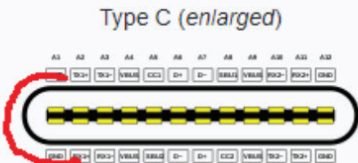

The lazy answer is to use a Both Jack, but if you are only putting data into the computer, a dedicated Data In Jack will transfer the data twice as fast as a Both Jack because the entire bandwidth of the Data In Jack cord is used for data transfer. If you are transferring data “in” with a Both Jack, half of the cord bandwidth that is dedicated to transferring data “out” will sit idle, leading to slowdown and potential overheating of the cord. Or if you try to transfer data “out” with a Data In Jack, you will cause a major data backlog, and potentially a fire. The same analysis applies to a decision to transfer data “out,” just in reverse. There is nothing wrong with using a Both Jack – just remember it’s not a panacea.

Now that you have a basic understanding of data transfer via jacks, we can delve into the world of USB jacks. A USB jack input on your computer is shaped like a standard rectangle. You plug the rectangle part of the USB cord into that jack, and the cord will taper down from the rectangle plug on your computer to a smaller USB jack that plugs into your device or receptacle. With reference to the Standard USB Jack series, the USB jack will taper down into either a “USB-A,” “USB-B,” or “USB-C” jack. I have inserted a helpful chart below that details when each jack was invented, its data transfer speed, its appearance, whether it can be used as a Data In Jack, Data Out Jack, or a Both Jack, the cost of each USB jack in 2019 dollars, and the cost/benefit and Business As Usual analyses for each USB jack.

(Image source: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/USB#USB_1.x) Given the number of USB jacks I encounter on a daily basis, and the fact that USB jacks don’t have an onomatopoeic name, it can be difficult to remember whether you are dealing with a USB-A, USB-B, or USB-C jack without repeatedly consulting a USB jack chart. Using the chart to the left, I have created a heuristic chart to help me remember which jack is which.

Below you will find the chart I prepared, which I laminated and store under my computer keyboard.

The article skims only the surface of USB jacks, and is intended solely as an introduction to the size, shape, and usage of USB jacks. If you or your company would like to take a “deeper dive” into the USB jack ocean, I am available for one-on-one or group presentations.’

If you're not my Uncle Robert please turn the page

Hi Uncle Robert, it's Jamie. I really need to talk to you and I know you've been ignoring my calls and texts too. I really, really need to get in contact with you and get the Schmidt oil paintings from you for Hog Summit. I know you're mad at me but I hope you can understand that I can't drive you to the doctor all the time especially when you give me no warning. If you had told me in advance you had a doctors appointment for your swollen ankles then I could've made sure I had nothing to do on that morning so I could drive you but you said to me last Friday morning out of no where that you need a lift to the medical centre and I was busy and couldn't drive you there. Where are the Shmit oil paints? I went to your house on Sunday to get the paintings when you weren't home. The last time I was over they were under the bike hanging from the ceiling and next to the keyboard and now they're not there. Where have you taken them? Tell me where you are, I want to know you're safe at least and I want to know your location. I know you're reading this. Please contact me via text or phone call. We need the paintings.

My Trip to the Bahamas

by Jenny D.

On August last year I went to Bahamas. Why? Because every CEO needs to do it at some point. When I got there I ate coconuts and pina colada on my hog and relaxed on the beach. I got severely sun burned and it hurt like hell. Business calls came storming in on my black berry but I ignored them. Its called a vacation idiots. Do NOT disturb me. All work and no play made Jack a dull boy. The water was blue and beautiful and I stayed in there until my hands and feet were turned prunes and they yelled at me to get out of there because of sharks in the water. Like I cared. One time at the bahamas, I raced a shark and won. On my second month in the Bahamas I ran into my best friend Shmit. What luck! Shmit always told me to wear my sunblock so I did. If it weren't for Shmit I'd be a piping hot red tomato (prone to sun burns). I had so much fun that I forgot to go home. I tried riding my hog home one day but couldn't find the 101 freeway. This was a major mistake on the Bahamas. My final rating of the Bahamas is one star because I couldn't go home until they air lifted me and my hog all the way back to Hollywood.

Dear Scientific American, here is my article.

Jupiter. It is a planet out in the sky but doctors are now finding out more and more about this mysterious land [pictured]. 80% of the water used taking a shower is lost to outer space, and Jupiter is no exception. The sun would weigh 10.5 nonillion pounds on Jupiter, but the red spot on Jupiter is bigger than the sun! (Little known space fact: ET and Yoda were played by the same actor!) Many people ask me what it would look like to fall into Jupiter, but the answer is really very simple, if you aren't stupid. You can't see anything on Jupiter because there is no air. But if you jumped off an infinitely tall bridge, you would eventually be falling faster than the speed of light and would have negative mass. No I already ate french fries. They were two for one at Beanie's. Elephants [pictured] would weigh a little more on Jupiter, but not as much as you think because they have no bones. They are the only mammal without them, and that is why they can't jump. The good news is that if you threw them in space, they would instantly be going the speed of light because they would have no weight. I don't know what Grackles [pictured] would weigh on Jupiter, but I love Grackles. They are one of the few birds that can cross the blood brain barrier. They can fly through the air, but they have no hands. I am done now the end.

I am very glad this article has been published and that now everybody has to shut up.

PS

Please take out the part about the french fries. I meant to text that to my mom.

The Hollywood Hogs official post box in Dombegyház village, Békés County, in the Southern Great Plain region of south-east Hungary was vandalised to near-destruction in early August by a group of unidentified teen girls. The Co-Founders have been trying to contact the local rendőrség but nobody understands English. The receptionists at the Polgármesteri Hivatal refuse to put us in contact with the Polgármester. 1. This ad put up on http://www.dombegyhaz.hu/main.php?cat=gov_pub so the people of Dombegyház with the skills to fix the post box have access to this job opening.
2. A barrier put up around the post box with a notice stating that people under the age of 19 are not to pass through the barrier.
3. Temporary post box set up so Hollywood Hog mail can continue to travel in and out of Dombegyház village.

BRAIN PILL

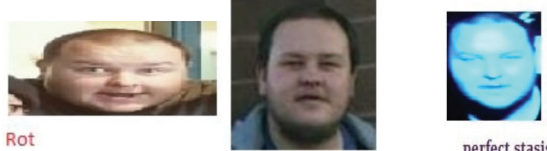

Fellow, an Honesty Plea:

Ah and lo from the era of that stoned ape we ate the fruit.. Yammer yammer.. Boring adage right? No not really, it's pleasant and Heartbreaking. If you're not feeling level headed or ok or generally 'with it' don't read this, but it's because half your brain has boiled off or steamed off or had been cooked off and the blame is squarely on you. I can see how you look reading this.. Ewww. Eeee. Yucky blech.

The road to normality and stasis is to "glue" your head back together, sounds a bit funny i realize.. Conjures shades of primary school, elmers and the like.. Ridiculous. One could almost laugh. Though it makes complete sense, and from what i can see you're not in the position to laugh at much.

Glue is the universal binder. You need the 4 types of chemical glue in my pill to set your brain back together. Now, I mention glue a couple lines back, you may remember..., what we say around here is that its part one of a three part epoxy which is part 2 of a 1 prong plan: Transgressive taking of my pill you purchase; the 'third leg' of my operation.. All this combined with a 6 phase calendar. 62 forty one and 99.

I can view you through an HD feed and you need the pill.
